5 THINGS TO KNOW

WELCOME TO METRO.US

MATT JUUL, BOSTON FEATURES EDITOR

Well, the fun had to end sometime. Summer will unofficially come to a close with the long weekend in honor of Labor Day on Monday, Sept. 3. But before pumpkin spice latte and back-to-school season kicks into high gear for fall, there's still some time to sneak in one more beach trip or a day of exploring the city. Read ahead to find out all the best things to do over Labor Day weekend and make sure to stay up-to-date on everything happening around town at metro.us.

TRUMP, TRUDEAU UPBEAT ABOUT NAFTA DEAL

1 The leaders of the United States and Canada expressed optimism on Wednesday that they could reach a new NAFTA deal by a Friday deadline as negotiators prepared to talk through the night, although Canada warned that a number of tricky issues remained. Under pressure, Canada rejoined the talks to modernize the 24-year-old North American Free Trade Agreement after Mexico and the United States announced a bilateral deal on Monday. Canadian Foreign Minister Chrystia Freeland said late on Wednesday that talks were at "a very intense moment" but said there was "a lot of good will" between Canadian and U.S. negotiators. "Our officials are meeting now and will be meeting until very late tonight. Possibly they'll be meeting all night long," Freeland said. She and U.S. Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer had agreed to review progress early on Thursday. President Donald Trump has set a Friday deadline for the three countries to reach an in-principle agreement, which would allow Mexican President Enrique Pena Nieto to sign it before he leaves office at the end of November.

3 RELEASED FROM JAIL IN NM COMPOUND CASE

2 Three people were released from jail in Taos, N.M., on Wednesday after a judge dismissed charges of child abuse at their desert compound where a toddler's body was found, a defense lawyer said. Judge Emilio Chavez ordered charges to be dropped against Lucas Morton, his wife Subhannah Wahhaj and her sister Hujrah Wahhaj because prosecutors had failed to follow a procedural rule after they were charged and jailed. "They're out now," said Megan Mitsunaga, a defense attorney for Subhannah Wahhaj. The three still face a criminal trespassing case in magistrates court in Taos County for building their makeshift settlement on a plot of land near Amalia, N.M., that did not belong to them, Mitsunaga said. She said they had mistakenly built it there. She said state prosecutors had not indicated whether they intended to file new charges against the three, who have been accused by police and prosecutors of planning attacks on "corrupt institutions." Another New Mexico judge on Wednesday dismissed child abuse charges against two other defendants from the compound based on the prosecution's failure to follow court procedure.

MCCAIN LIES IN STATE

3 The late U.S. Sen. John McCain lay in state at the Arizona Capitol Rotunda on Wednesday in Phoenix, Ariz. McCain, who died last Saturday, will lie in state on Friday at the U.S. Capitol followed by a private service at Annapolis.

KENDRICKS CUT AFTER INSIDER TRADING CHARGE

4 The Cleveland Browns released linebacker Mychal Kendricks on Wednesday after he was hit with federal charges for insider trading. U.S. Attorney William M. McSwain, based in Philadelphia, announced the charges earlier Wednesday. The complaint said Kendricks turned $80,000 into $1.2 million in a span of five months. "Prior to signing Mychal, we were informed that there was a financial situation that he had been involved with in 2014," Browns general manager John Dorsey said in a statement. "We were told Mychal had fully cooperated with investigators as a victim. From what was communicated at that time and based on the numerous questions we asked and further due diligence on our part, including checking with the league office, there was no information discovered that conveyed otherwise. Recently, we were provided an update on the matter and the circumstances have changed. We are now dealing with a different set of facts and the additional information we've gathered has led us to the decision to release Mychal from our team. Due to the ongoing legal nature of this situation, we will have no further comments."

ITC KILLS TRUMP'S TARIFFS ON CANADIAN NEWSPRINT

5 The U.S. International Trade Commission on Wednesday overturned Canadian newsprint tariffs imposed by the Trump administration in January, claiming that imports from Canada don't hurt the American printing and publishing industry. The commission voted unanimously on the issue, agreeing that the imports from Canada of uncoated groundwood paper does not harm paper producers in the United States, The Canadian Press reported. The paper is made to produce newspapers and in commercial printing and book publishing. "A U.S. industry is not materially injured or threatened with material injury by reason of imports of uncoated groundwood paper from Canada that the U.S. Department of Commerce has determined are subsidized and sold in the United States at less than fair value," the commission said in a statement. The New York Times called the unanimous decision a "win" for smaller and medium-sized newspapers who were hit by the tariffs, which were as high as 20 percent on Canadian newsprint.

The most fun you can have at a funeral
Among the stranger things that happened this summer was Please Party Thank You, an interactive theater meets scavenger hunt-meets-dance party where you could hunt for clues, make tinfoil hats and generally have a lot of nerdy fun. Their next themed night is A Death Well Died, going down this Friday. $50, 38 W. 39th St., futureproof.site

Be one of the animals at Electric Zoo
The last outdoor music festival of the season takes over Randall's Island from Friday through Sunday. Electric Zoo has all the EDM beats you can handle, headlined by Marshmello, Martin Garrix and Tiesto. $89.99+, electriczoofestival.com

Fireworks on the beach
What's a holiday without fireworks? Head to Coney Island for the final edition of its summer fireworks show. Whether you make an afternoon of it on the Boardwalk and ride the rides, or hit up the New York Aquarium's last late Summer Friday to observe from its new rooftop deck, find a good view of the beach by 9:30 p.m. to enjoy the show.

Vacation in the tropics
Dig your toes into the real sand at Jersey City's riverside bar Surf City, which looks like it was lifted off the beaches of an island, with frozen drink machines cranking out all your favorite cocktails and a special all-lobster menu launching Aug. 31 with 10 different dishes. 11 Marin Blvd., surfcitybar.com

Flip your wig at Pier 17
The iconic drag festival that started in Tompkins Square Park in the mid-'80s is back at Lower Manhattan's Pier 17 this weekend. Wigstock stars Lady Bunny and Neil Patrick Harris, with dozens of drag queens putting on the liveliest and most colorful show you'll find this weekend. Sept. 1, $95 and up, ticketmaster.com

Taste fall's harvest
Brooklyn Cider House is having a clambake on Sunday with live music on its outdoor patio. Your ticket includes a giant plate of seafood plus a 5-pound bag of early-season apples from the restaurant's own Twin Star orchard. Sept. 2, 1100 Flushing Ave., Bushwick brooklynciderhouse.com

Don't spill your tiki drinks while dancing
There's nothing that says Summer 2018 more than tiki drinks, which is exactly what you'll find in the spacious backyard of Williamsburg bar The Well during the Tiki Disco dance party. DJs Eli Escobar, Andy Pry and Lloydski bring the beats along with cookout food and plenty of good vibes. Sept. 2, must be 21+, 272 Meserole St., $10, tikidisco.com

Join two parades through Brooklyn
The annual march for workers' rights isn't until Sept. 8, but there are two other parades on Monday. For the early birds there is J'Ouvert, from 6-11 a.m. along Flatbush, Empire and Nostrand avenues. Starting right afterward is the epic West Indian Day Parade, which kicks off at 11 a.m. and runs until 6 p.m. along Eastern Parkway in Crown Heights.

Free barbecue and bocce
Strapped for cash? Nowadays has enough backyard to welcome everyone who wants in on their free Labor Day barbecue going on from noon to midnight. They'll make the ribs, and there's free rounds of bocce, too. 56-06 Cooper Ave., Brooklyn, nowadays.nyc

Final NYC Ferry route launches on East River

With its last East River route launched, NYC Ferry sails into the future.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
nikki.mascali@metro.us

The NYC Ferry has given countless New Yorkers from the Bronx to Rockaway a whole new way to commute via the East River. But what about those who live on the Hudson River side of the city? NYC FERRY

The NYC Ferry on Wednesday launched on the Lower East Side, the sixth and final route of the service's initial rollout that began in May 2017.

The new route of the Hornblower-operated service enables New Yorkers to travel from Long Island City to East 34th Street, Stuyvesant Cove, Corlears Hook and Pier 11/Wall Street in about 32 minutes. They can also transfer for free at East 34th Street or Wall Street for NYC Ferry service to the Bronx, Astoria, South Brooklyn and Rockaway.

"NYC Ferries have turned the East River, which once divided New Yorkers, into a point of connection — and are helping us build a fairer city for all," Mayor Bill de Blasio said.

While the Lower East Side launch is a welcome option for residents, it's also exciting for the NYC Ferry team, who are "really able to take a breath now after the herculean effort to launch this system," Senior Vice President Cameron Clark told Metro. "They're able to really see the fruits of their labor, and it really reaffirms the long days and nights."

6M

Since its launch 15 months ago, the NYC Ferry has served six million riders and now includes two new higher-capacity vessels to meet ridership demands.

Since its launch 15 months ago, the NYC Ferry has served six million riders and now includes two new higher-capacity vessels to meet ridership demands, with four others arriving by next summer. From the start, Clark was optimistic that "'if you build it, they will come,' and people would want to use it," he said.

The NYC Ferry has given countless New Yorkers from the Bronx to Rockaway a whole new way to commute via the East River. But what about those who live on the Hudson River side of the city?

"We're going to continue to pursue which other locations and stops make sense," Clark said. "Our team is going to be busy working with the community to understand where to go next."

"We're going to pursue which other locations make sense."
Cameron Clark, NYC Ferry Senior Vice President

Adds James Patchett, president and CEO of the NYC Economic Development Corporation, "The Lower East Side route is the last NYC Ferry line to launch in 2018, and the start of shorter commutes and more opportunities for New Yorkers across the city. We are proud to have delivered a transit system to dozens of communities that have long been underserved and look forward to exploring ways to expand the network."

Cuomo, Nixon argue over who is bigger Trump critic at debate

The governor did put to rest rumors of a 2020 presidential run.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo and challenger Cynthia Nixon argued over who was the stauncher opponent of President Donald Trump on Wednesday in their only debate as they battle for the state's Democratic gubernatorial nomination next month.

Cuomo, who is seeking a third term as governor, promised he would not run for the U.S. presidency in 2020, despite expectations to the contrary.

In often prickly exchanges over the course of an hour, Nixon, an actress and activist who is running to Cuomo's left and trailing him in opinion polls, tried to cast the governor as acting mainly in the interests of corporate donors to his campaign.

"Nobody has stood up to Donald Trump like I have."

Gov. Andrew Cuomo

Cuomo painted Nixon, who won an Emmy for her portrayal of lawyer Miranda Hobbes on the HBO show "Sex and the City," as inexperienced and naive about the practicalities of New York politics.

Nixon came equipped with statistics and an array of policy positions on topics like rent control and transit funding, which Cuomo frequently rebuffed as flawed.

He described Trump, a Republican, as "the largest threat" faced by New Yorkers, a greater danger than climate change, extreme weather or terrorism. He pointedly criticized Trump for his anti-immigration rhetoric and desire to limit access to abortion.

"Nobody has stood up to Donald Trump like I have," he said at the debate at Hofstra University on Long Island.

Nixon scoffed at Cuomo's depiction of himself as a fierce opponent of the president, who, like the two candidates, is a New York City native.

"You stood up to him about as well as he stands up to Putin," she said, referring to Russian President Vladimir Putin. "We need to oppose Donald Trump not just with rhetoric but with policy."

Critics have accused Trump of being insufficiently critical of Putin.

The debate, just over two weeks before the Sept. 13 gubernatorial primary, may have been Nixon's best opportunity to convince voters she has a chance of upsetting Cuomo.

Three polls in recent months all had her trailing Cuomo by more than 30 percentage points.

"CAN YOU STOP INTERRUPTING?" Nixon interrupted Cuomo's answers on several occasions, visibly irritating him.

"Can you stop interrupting?" Cuomo snapped at one point.

"Can you stop lying?" Nixon shot back.

"Yeah," Cuomo said. He hesitated for a moment. "As soon as you do."

Cuomo is the son of the late Mario Cuomo, who was a three-term New York governor and considered a liberal lion. The current governor has a long record of government service and had raised nearly 50 times more money than Nixon, according to financial disclosures filed last month.

In one of the more heated exchanges, he criticized Nixon's setting up of a corporation in order to file her income taxes, an arrangement she said was not unusual among actors and other freelance workers.

He earlier objected to Nixon calling him a "corporate Democrat," saying repeatedly: "You are a corporation," and asking as Nixon stared back at him: "Are you a corporation?"

"I'm a person," Nixon said.

Nixon said New Yorkers should vote for her because she was a longtime champion of causes such as abortion access, better funding for schools and equal rights for gay and lesbian people.

The winner of the Democratic nomination will face Republican Marc Molinaro, the Dutchess County executive, in the Nov. 6 election. There are also a few independents in the race. REUTERS

Trump-backed candidate's 'monkey' comment draws fire in Florida gov race

Republican U.S. Congressman Ron DeSantis came under fire on Wednesday when the President Trump-backed Florida gubernatorial candidate said his state should not "monkey this up" by electing Democratic Mayor Andrew Gillum, who is African-American.

GETTY IMAGES

Gillum scored a surprise victory in Tuesday's Democratic primary for one of the United States' most competitive races for governor. If the 39-year-old Tallahassee mayor wins the Nov. 6 election, he would become the most populous U.S. swing state's first black governor.

Critics on Wednesday blasted DeSantis, a staunch Donald Trump supporter who won his party's nomination the previous day, for comments they said had racist undertones.

Interviewed on Fox News, DeSantis said, "The last thing we need to do is to monkey this up by trying to embrace a socialist agenda with huge tax increases," after calling Gillum "an articulate" spokesman for far-left views.

Words like "monkey" or "ape" have been used to demean African-Americans and calling a black man "articulate" can be seen as racist.

However, in American colloquial speech, "monkey with" or "monkey around with" can mean handling something carelessly or incorrectly.

Gillum, however, told Fox News his opponent's "monkey" remark "wasn't lost on me. It's very clear that Mr. DeSantis is taking a page directly from the campaign manual of Donald Trump," who has been repeatedly criticized for remarks seen by some as racist or racially inflammatory. REUTERS

Detroit to shut off drinking water in schools after lead found

Detroit authorities on Wednesday ordered drinking water shut off at all city public schools after elevated levels of lead and copper were found in water at more than a dozen buildings with antiquated plumbing systems.

Over the weekend, supplies were cut at 16 schools and bottled water was provided until water coolers arrived, Detroit Public Schools Community District Superintendent Nikolai Vitti said.

Although there is no evidence of excessive levels of copper or lead in other schools, Vitti decided to shut off water throughout the system "until a deeper and broader analysis can be conducted to determine the long-term solutions for all schools," he said in a statement.

"We have no reason to believe that any children have been harmed," said Chrystal Wilson, a spokeswoman for the district.

About 50,000 students are enrolled in the district, which operates 110 schools, according to its website. Detroit Public Schools students are due to start classes on Tuesday; teachers are already working.

The Great Lakes Water Authority and Detroit Water and Sewerage Department said in a statement that the water, after treatment, surpassed all federal and state standards for quality and safety. They attributed any drinking water contamination in the affected schools to the antiquated plumbing in the buildings.

Detroit's drinking water comes from the Detroit River.

Water safety is a sensitive issue in Michigan, where lead contamination in the water supply of Flint prompted dozens of lawsuits and criminal charges against former government officials.

Medical research has linked lead to a stunting of children's neural development. Exposure to copper can cause gastrointestinal distress and liver or kidney damage, according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Flint switched its water supply to the Flint River from Lake Huron in April 2014 to cut costs. The corrosive river water caused lead to leach from pipes. Flint switched back to Lake Huron water in October 2015, but the contamination continued. REUTERS

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

‘Breakfast Club’ co-host helping turn ‘hustlers’ into entrepreneurs

Angela Yee is on a search to find the top “side hustlers” in a nationwide contest.

jeff.tomko@metro.us

From Wu Tang to wheatgrass, a lifetime of hustle and hard lessons have paid off for “Breakfast Club” co-host Angela Yee.

And now the syndicated morning-show star and juice entrepreneur is lending her expertise to helping others turn their “side hustles” into fulfilling — and lucrative — careers.

“You’re so much happier when you’re doing something you love, even if it doesn’t pay off financially at first. I do feel like one of the biggest mistakes I made [early on] was putting money over happiness.”

Yee is also co-owner of Bed-Stuy’s Juices for Life and is teaming up with Amp Energy Organic for “The Search for the Ultimate Side Hustlers” nationwide contest.

Yee and the Amp Energy team will go over submissions from participants throughout the nation for the best-laid-out hustle ideas — those crazy projects you do on top of your 9-to-5 in order to either make ends meet or fulfill a career passion — and select the five best ideas. Think “Shark Tank” for hustlers, without the investment incentives.

The contest began this week and lasts until Sept. 16. The final five will then get the opportunity to show off their hustles at the Powerhouse NYC 2018 pre-event on Oct. 24 and Oct. 28’s main show, which will be headlined by Grammy-winning rapper Cardi B.

“When you want something bad enough, you need to put in the work and keep it going until you make it happen,” Yee says. “I’m excited to hear from people who are getting home from work and turning around to put the same amount of energy into their passion project.”

Long before she skyrocketed to national fame with “The Breakfast Club,” Yee was highly regarded — and quite happy — as a member of Wu Tang Management. She regrettably admits, though, that she took a larger salary at another record label at the expense of a job she loved..

“[When I resigned] I told my boss I needed to speak with him,” Yee said. “Before I said anything, he says to me ‘Oh, I just wanted to say everyone loves you, we’ve been getting great compliments on you … thank you so much.’ And then I had to quit right after that. Talk about awkward. It was a bad decision.”

Yee has bounced back, and quite well, dishing hip-hop info in the morning and doling out green juices at her Brooklyn juice bar in the evening — call it her passion project. “It definitely feels like a five-to-nine job,” she says.

As a contest judge, Yee will pass her experience to the participants, helping them turn a side project into a profitable career. A variety of skills are needed, according to Yee — commitment, prioritizing and especially networking. “Nobody can do it alone,” Yee says. “We should never think “This is me, by myself, on an island, trying to make a business work. You’ll drive yourself crazy.”

But there is one necessary investment, Yee stresses: yourself. “We’re scared sometimes to take a risk and go out there and spend our own money to start a business, but we really have to do that,” she says. “We really have to gamble on ourselves because that’s when great things can happen.”

PUT YOUR SHOPPING CARTS AWAY!
People can be very lazy about putting shopping carts away. Why do I have to come out from a store and see a shopping cart in front of or on the side of my car? All you had to do was walk a few feet to put it away. Also, for the people who take shopping carts from the store area. You use it to push your packages home, then abandon it on a street corner or in front of someone's house. You removed it illegally, push it back to the store!

Aries Take a moment to digest and react to what's happening. Problems with peers, relatives or an employer should be noted and dealt with before they grow worse.

Taurus You are ready to take on the world. Stand tall, trust in your abilities and don't for a minute let someone else take over your interests. Opportunity is within reach.

Gemini Changes are taking place behind closed doors. Consider what's happening and refuse to be left out. Offer insight that will make others take note and invite you to join in.

Cancer How you help others will make a difference. You can let someone take advantage of you or you can set the standard, make the rules and ensure that you are treated fairly.

Leo Beware of anyone pushing you to make an abrupt change. Taking on too many expenses to please someone will cause more stress, making matters worse. Offer only what you can afford.

Virgo Rearrange your schedule to include something that brings you joy. A lifestyle change will encourage you to make an even bigger shift.

Libra A personal change may not be your choice, but accepting the inevitable will lead to benefits. If you discuss your concerns with a former co-worker, something positive will transpire.

Scorpio An interesting concept will get you thinking about different ways to use your money to bring about favorable changes. A partnership will enhance your prospects.

Sagittarius Use your intelligence to come up with an alternative that will work to your benefit. Don't give in to someone trying to pressure you into something you don't need.

Capricorn Look over your personal papers, negotiate contracts or invest your money in something concrete. Refuse to give in to emotional spending and don't try to buy someone's love.

Aquarius A change proposed by others will not live up to expectations. Take the smart route and wait for evidence that supports the promises being made.

Pisces You'll receive the help you need if you ask for it. Much can be accomplished if you are disciplined and ready to implement the changes required to get what you want. A job prospect looks promising. EUGENIA LAST

'Destination Wedding' is the most surprising movie of 2018

Director Victor Levin talks working with Keanu Reeves and Winona Ryder on the indie flick.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

"Destination Wedding" opens in theaters August 31. GETTY IMAGES

ROBB ROSENFELD / REGATTA

When it was announced that Keanu Reeves and Winona Ryder would be pairing up for what was seemingly a romantic comedy about two strangers who come together for the "Destination Wedding," the internet went into overdrive with nostalgia.

The film marks the fourth collaboration between the two beloved actors, but rather than being an overly sentimental rom-com that has the predictable highs and lows, "Destination Wedding" actually has much more in common with the art-house European movies of the '60s and '70s. We caught up with writer and director Victor Levin to chat about making what could be the most surprising movie of 2018.

What sort of audience do you think this movie can find?

The audience for this movie is people who are interested in these questions. There's the question of bouncing back, but also several other questions are touched upon along the way. Most of these things are discussed through dialogue. They are not played out through events. These are two people at the exiles table at a wedding. They are far from the center of things, happiness and life, and they are left to their own devices. They don't like the weekend, they don't like each other, they don't like themselves very much. But there is nothing else to do but talk and air your grievances, and in that process, they get to know each other and recognize a spark in one another.

It feels like a European film from the '60s.

I love those movies. I am massive fan of Eric Rohmer. Watching his films and the body of the French New Wave, this idea definitely stayed with me that a good conversation is perfectly legitimate moviemaking.

It seems like the film's main motif is the lost art of the conversation.

In my opinion the public discourse, having a great deal to do with our politics has become so harsh and such a constant backbeat to our existence that I wanted to put that in the film. I feel like it is so hard to be our best when whenever you turn on the television, radio and find yourself in a political discussion with friends, there is an edge that could easily be mistaken for rancour. This wasn't how it was when I was growing up. People disagreed and were angry but it wasn't bilious or acidic as this. It was a more straightforward kind of conflict. The current public discourse feels terrible to me. It feels evil. If you're a person that is struggling with their own issues, as these two characters are, and you're living in a world that constantly tells you how nasty it is, then it becomes that much harder for you to recover and get to a place of happiness.

‘Operation Finale’ timely highlights that Nazi Germany was not a ‘unique scenario’

Director Chris Weitz opens up about his new drama starring Oscar Isaac and Ben Kingsley.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

Chris Weitz didn’t need much persuading to oversee “Operation Finale.”

Not only was English writer Matthew Orton’s script “great,” but the story of Mossad spies, played by Oscar Isaac, Melanie Laurent and Nick Kroll, tracking down and capturing Ben Kingsley’s Adolf Eichmann in Argentina “hit a button” for the filmmaker, too.

For those who don’t know, Eichmann was one of the architects of the Holocaust in Nazi Germany, who escaped to South America after the Second World War.

“I grew up with all of these subjects,” Weitz tells Metro. “My dad wrote books about Nazis. He was an historian as well as a refugee and a veteran. So it fit into my wheelhouse.”

But there was also a more pressing and timely reason why Weitz wanted to sink his teeth into “Operation Finale.”

“I think that we are facing the rise of nationalists and basically fascists and racist movements around the world. And what this story indicated to me is that we like to think that Nazi Germany was a unique scenario,” says Weitz. “In that it is not only psychopaths and sadists that committed these crimes. But actually it was theoretically normal people, who loved their families, were good at their jobs, but were very ambitious, very careerist, very opportunistic, who committed these crimes.”

He adds, “It takes people like that, not just maniacs, to make something terrible like the Holocaust happen.”

So was Weitz trying to normalize Eichmann in “Operation Finale”?

“I don’t think he really needs normalization. In his own way, he was normal. Left to his own devices, he'd have probably become the guy that he ended up as. Which was a guy working at a Mercedes-Benz factory, with a wife and kids," says Weitz. "But what happens when demagogues use racial hatred to gain political power is that all kinds of people get caught up in it."

With "Operation Finale," though, Weitz was intent on making the film as entertaining as possible for his audience, while still sneaking his message through.

"I wanted to make a suspense thriller, in terms of all the bells and whistles and the genre tappings that you want. So that I could make a gripping kind of yarn," he says. "Also to sneak in as much meaning as I possibly could to the story. I wanted to get stuff that was really relevant to me in there."

"I wanted to say stuff about living in a post-truth world, where everything appears to be debatable and arguable," Weitz adds. "Everyone is trying to present their own version of the truth. A lot of the battle between Oscar's character and Sir Ben's character is about that."

"Operation Finale" is in theaters.

Lost Frequencies promises surprises at this year's Electric Zoo Festival

We spoke with the Belgian DJ ahead of his Sunday night main stage set

PAT KING

PHOTO: PRIVIDED

New York's premier electronic dance music festival, Electric Zoo, will take over Randall's Island for three full days. One of the headliners on its final day is the wildly popular Belgian DJ Felix De Laet — otherwise known as Lost Frequencies. We caught up with him before this weekend to see what he has in store for this year's festival.

You will be playing the main stage at this year's Electric Zoo Festival. Is playing these larger festivals more special than playing clubs?
Playing clubs is fun because the fans (most of the time) are specifically attending to see you either as a headline act of part of a lineup, but with festivals, there could be hundreds of artists and acts – but I enjoy that. I grew up going to festivals since my early teens and Electric Zoo, from what I've heard, is crazy! I love New York and the festival vibe is so big in the U.S. across the whole scene, everyone embraces all genres from trap to big room and house sounds, so I still feel lucky, excited and ready to bring the party to all my fans over there.

What makes playing in New York different than any other city?
The diversity, for sure. All different cultures and ages enjoying multiple styles of dance and electronic music is something I really enjoy seeing and the type of crowds that are so much fun to play to, where I can really the audiences. Oh, and the Randall's Island location looks supercool.

This is your first time playing Electric Zoo. Have you ever been to the festival before? Do you have any surprises in store?
I have not been before, but it is one that has been on my want-to-play list, the perfect time to visit NYC is the end of the Summer in my eyes. I do have some surprises, some new tracks from my Found Frequencies label and exclusive edits for you guys…

Lastly — What is your favorite preshow meal?
I am the biggest sushi fan — sashimi and nigiri are my favorites.

HERE IS EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT THIS WEEKEND'S ELECTRIC ZOO FESTIVAL 2018.

When is it?
The Electric Zoo festival will take place from Friday Aug. 31 through Sept. 2.

What is the lineup?
Electric Zoo generally brings a who's who of the electronic dance world to the Big Apple. Since this is the festival's "The Big 10" year anniversay, they are sparing no expenses in making this one of the biggest EDM blow outs you are likely to experience in sometime. The lineup is below.

Are tickets still available?
Yes, but in limited quantaties. Make sure to head over to electriczoo.com to see what is available.

3 NEW RESTAURANTS YOU NEED TO KNOW

BEA DA COSTA

Henry

Two famous faces of New York's food and beverage scene have stepped into Henry at the Life Hotel to make the restaurant their own. Chef JJ Johnson finally found a home for the pan-African flavors he's been honing since leaving Minton's in June 2017. Dishes span the continent while also bringing in the Latin and Caribbean flavors of his childhood: piri piri clams, roasted half-jerk chicken, jollof and housemade roti. Behind the bar is Pam Wiznitzer (Dead Rabbit) shaking up seasonal cocktails that incorporate menu ingredients like saffron and Thai basil.

Elsie Rooftop

Nobody was cool enough to get on Elsie de Wolfe's guest list unless their last name was Chanel, Windsor or Rothschild. The New York socialite was an actress, interior designer and author famous for her elegant parties, and while you're 70 years late to get in, Elsie Rooftop is the next best thing. The spacious new indoor lounge is gilded with gold accents amid powder-blue chairs and millennial-pink banquettes, while the outdoor patio is a blue-and-white Mediterranean oasis with spectacular views. Chef David Burke brings a menu of American bar fare alongside a fruit-forward cocktail list you'll recognize, with ingredients just unusual enough to intrigue.

Toriko NY

Elevating food on a stick? Leave it to Japan. Toriko NY is the first overseas location of the Japanese yakitori chain that focuses on grilled chicken skewers — and they mean every part of the bird. What started as a cheap snack with a cold beer at izakayas becomes fine dining at the hands of executive chef Shinji Odahara, working from tail to heart and even skin with only varieties of shio (Japanese sea salt), soy sauce and freshly ground wasabi as accompaniment. Vegetable skewers and rice-based dishes round out the menu, plus delicacies like foie gras and truffle chawanmushi and wonton shio ramen. The wine list leans French — apparently the best to pair with chicken.

Swim with the manatees at this fantastic Florida resort

Plantation on Crystal River is the perfect place to cure your wintertime blues.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

As summer winds down, reminders of the brutal cold of the wintry months might slowly start to creep back into your mind. While flashbacks to the polar vortex and the freezing blasts of wind we've experienced on the East Coast might wake you up in the middle of the night, planning a trip down to Florida's Plantation on Crystal River might be the perfect way to break up those cold winter days.

Swim with manatees at Plantation on Crystal River

Florida's Plantation on Crystal River is an extremely unique attraction in that it is the only place in North America where you will be able to legally interact and swim alongside the "cow of the sea" — the adorable manatee. Plantation offers two separate winter packages for visitors who wish to escape the harsh northeast winter for sunny Crystal River. Starting at $298 for a one-night stay for two guests, visitors will be given accommodation in the gorgeous garden view rooms at the Plantation. Once settled in, you will be given a guided manatee snorkeling tour from the Plantation Adventure Center. To make sure that you are prepared, the Center will provide you with a wetsuit, snorkel, and mask so that you will be able to make the most of your time with these incredible animals.

Breakfast for two at the West 82 Bar & Grill will be included the next morning for this starter package. If you would like to increase your stay at Plantation, you can upgrade your package to the Adventure Center Package. Starting at $549 for two guests for two nights, this package includes a complimentary dinner at the West 82 Bar & Grill as well as breakfast in the morning. Guests will also be treated to a guided tour of the Rainbow River, one of Florida's most breathtaking and pristine rivers and largest spring systems. Guests will have access to kayak rentals as well as all-day kayak tours along the river with guided sunset and early-sunrise tour options. Of course, guests will be able to swim with the manatees with the Adventure Center Package as well. You'll just have one more day to enjoy them in all of their glory.

Food at Plantation on Crystal River

We've mentioned the meals that will be provided for you on this special trip, but let's talk about some of the options that will be available during your stay. West 82 Bar & Grill offers meals with some of the freshest ingredients around, with special dishes including she-crab soup, slow-cooked baby back ribs, shrimp and grits, and pan-seared grouper. If you are feeling like something on the lighter side, you can hang out and watch the game at the West 82 bar for some quick snacks as well as some seriously delicious drinks from their full cocktail menu. Located off of Plantation's stellar golf course, you can grab breakfast and lunch daily at the 19th Hole or just a quick beer after hitting the links. For a different pace entirely, check out the Plantation Tiki Bar for some tropical drinks that will put you in the vacation mindset.

Plantation on Crystal River is accessible from all major cities in Florida as it sits 80 miles north of Tampa, 90 miles northwest of Orlando, 125 miles southwest of Jacksonville, and 65 miles southwest of Gainesville. For more information on reservations and packages, head over to PlantationonCrystalRiver.com.

Get away.
Get closer.
They won't be this age for long. So make every second count with a family vacation in Florida. It's time to make moments that shine.

Andrew Zimmern on how a big tip changed his life

The Food Network host talks about his new show, "Big Food Truck Tip," and the struggle of keeping your culinary dreams alive.

PAT KING

GETTY IMAGES

Traveling chef and TV host Andrew Zimmern may be known best for devouring wild entrées and delicacies from all over the world on his long-running Travel Channel show "Bizarre Foods with Andrew Zimmern." But with his new show "Big Food Truck Tip" on the Food Network, he is on a new journey altogether. On this new show, Zimmern will visit food trucks from all over the country and deliver a hefty "tip" of $10,000 to the food trucks that impress him the most. Zimmern recently spoke with Metro about the new show and how innovation and creativity is crucial to keeping a food truck business alive.

Your new show "Big Food Truck Tip" doesn't feature operators competing against each other; rather, you surprise them with a huge tip based on the quality of their food and their overall business model. What made you choose this direction?

I teach entrepreneurship at Babson College and I'm always telling my students that I don't compete against other people for anything. I compete against myself. But, I didn't want to do a show where three trucks competed against each other because how does a barbecue truck compete against a dumpling truck that is competing against a Spanish tapas truck? It's just impossible. So I had to create some kind of metric.

It's all part of giving them a grade within themselves. It's basically how well are they doing versus what I think would be the perfect versions of themselves. Because no one is the perfect version of themselves. But I have a great way of imagining it!

Was there a moment when a tip from a customer changed or saved your life?

When I moved to Minnesota 27 years ago, I was on life support. I spent months and months in the Hazelden continuum of care — primary treatment, and then in a halfway house as a very sick addict and alcoholic. I was working as a dishwasher in restaurants just very anonymously with my head down just trying to focus on my recovery. Then, very quickly through a strange turn of events, I ended up taking over the kitchen of a restaurant in town and turned it into our first really great French bistro in the Twin Cities.

I was probably nine months sober, so I was three months into running the restaurant. I wasn't making any money. I came into sobriety hundreds of thousands of dollars in debt to the IRS. Insurance only covered half of all my treatment costs so I had that debt that I was paying back. I had no money. Everything that I made went straight to somebody else.

I cooked a meal for somebody's birthday and the host came into the kitchen and put $500 into my pocket. I almost passed out. I was nine months sober and I never considered doing something for myself that made me happy. I was so focused on repaying the debt. So focused on doing all of the hard work that was in front of me. I had so much shame from the last year of my using. I was sick and confused at nine months. It takes years and years of sobriety to start to think clearly and to start to practice some healthy self-love and all of that other stuff. That money really made a huge impact on me.

On a bigger scale, many food truck operators are just trying to get by.

It's not a really good business model. What it is, is a very good business opportunity. I know almost no one who comes into it with a three-year plan and a real way in which they are going to create a regular, growing profit stream. The great thing about food trucks is that it's a way for entrepreneurs to get into the food game in a very inexpensive way. What happens immediately is that everyone realizes that some days are too hot and humid, some days are rainy and cold, some days there's snow, some days your truck gets a flat tire … All of that stuff goes out the window the minute you open that truck. I think it's really crucial for truckers to be as creative as they are because it's an extremely hard business.

Lively Louis Armstrong Stadium making strong US Open debut

The newest US Open venue has brought the bravado, and some complaints, to the American Grand Slam this year.

ADAM ZAGORIA
sports@metro.us

NEW YORK — It was so noisy and raucous inside the new Louis Armstrong Stadium on Tuesday night that Patty Schnyder's daughter was awakened from the nap she was enjoying in the aisle while her mother played against Maria Sharapova.

Kim, Schnyder's 3-year-old daughter, then sat on her father's lap and clapped and cheered along with nearly 10,000 other fans until Sharapova finally prevailed near midnight.

Noisy night tennis, often lubricated by adult beverages and an enthusiastic New York City crowd, has always been an integral part of the U.S. Open experience. Now there are two helpings of tennis under the lights during the first week at the Open thanks to the addition of the new $150 million, 14,000-seat Louis Armstrong Stadium that features a retractable roof. The capacity of Armstrong makes it almost as large as the center courts at Wimbledon, the French Open and the Australian Open.

"There's a little bit more noise than maybe some of the other stadiums that I've played at," Sharapova said after playing her first match in the new stadium. "But I don't know, it's kind of part of the U.S. Open. You can't really shy away from the noise if you want to be a champion in New York City, right? I think you have to embrace it. There's always an amazing amount of energy no matter what court you play on in New York in the evening."

Louis Armstrong court made its US Open debut on Monday. GETTY IMAGES

Arthur Ashe Stadium, the world's largest tennis stadium with a capacity of more than 23,000, adjusted its schedule to now only features two day matches instead of three so as to ensure the tennis is finished for the start of the night session at 7 p.m.

On Monday, the Open's first day, the night session attendance of 27,291 set a single-session record.

So far, the tournament's biggest names — Serena Williams, Rafael Nadal and Roger Federer — have only been slated to play night matches in Ashe.

Still, not everyone has a rave review.

Ask Simona Halep, the No. 1 seed in the women's draw who played the first-ever match in the new stadium on Monday and promptly became the first No. 1 seed ever to lose in the opening round.

Defending U.S. Open champion Sloane Stephens played her first match of the tournament in Armstrong instead of Ashe and didn't love the ambiance.

Armstrong is more intimate than Ashe, but there are also food concessions along the concourse, allowing fans to congregate, talk and take pictures closer to the court between changeovers.

"There was a lot going on, like I said, between the airplanes and the subway behind the court, the concessions being in the lower bowl, and people walking in (during) the games at, like, 2-all, 3-all," Stephens said. "There's just a lot going on."

As for the court itself, it gets shade because of the sides and retractable roof, which can help when the temperature is in the 90s as it has been this week.

But the shade doesn't mean it's not hot.

"It's a nice stadium," No. 4 seed Alexander Zverev said. "For a No. 2 court at a Grand Slam, it was absolutely perfect. One thing is that it feels like there's not a lot of air coming through, so it's kind of like in a sauna. But the court itself is nice. The stadium is nice. I actually enjoyed playing in it."

Jets trade Bridgewater to Saints

Darnold slated to start Week 1 while Drew Brees gets a backup QB.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The New York Jets have traded quarterback Teddy Bridgewater and a sixth-round pick to the New Orleans Saints on Wednesday, as first reported by ESPN's Adam Schefter.

The Jets will receive a third-round pick in the return for the quarterback.

Bridgewater didn't find out about the deal in the most ceremonious way. Per NFL Network's Tom Pelissero, Jets players were on the team bus when it was stopped. Bridgewater was subsequently told that he was traded, got off the bus and the team drove off.

New York's dealing of Bridgewater was further confirmation that rookie quarterback Sam Darnold would be the team's starter come Week 1 of the regular season against the Detroit Lions, which was made official shortly after the trade.

Veteran Josh McCown, who improbably led the team to five wins last season, will be his backup.

The Jets took a chance on signing Bridgewater to a one-year deal earlier this offseason. The 25-year-old's status as a contributing passer in the NFL was in question as he continued to recover from a gruesome leg injury suffered prior to the 2016 season that almost ended his career.

It halted a promising start to Bridgewater's time with the Minnesota Vikings, which included a Pro Bowl appearance in 2015 in which he passed for over 3,200 yards in 16 games.

While he had only attempted two passes in the previous two seasons, the Jets brought him on prior to drafting Darnold as a low-risk, high-reward option alongside McCown. With a one-year deal worth $5 million, he wouldn't have provided much of a hit if he showed that he couldn't perform.

The best-case scenario was that he showed glimpses of returning as a starter at the NFL level and the Jets could either use him to start while searching for a franchise quarterback or trade him if they found one. They found that quarterback in Darnold, and Bridgewater did the rest of the work to increase his value during the preseason. In three games, Bridgewater completed over 70-percent of his passes (28-of-38) for 316 yards, two touchdowns and one interception.

Bridgewater will back up Drew Brees for the time being, but there is a chance that he could be viewed as the team's starting quarterback of the future if the team decides to move on from the future Hall of Famer should he underperform in 2018.

The Jets sent Teddy Bridgewater and a sixth-round pick to the Saints for a third-round pick on Wednesday. GETTY IMAGES
